(57) Abstract :
 ABSTRACT Examining the impact of behavioral finance on the sustainable investment decisions and asset management Behavioral finance is a rapidly-growing field of research that examines the influence of investor behavior and decision-making on financial decisions. The principles of behavioral finance are increasingly being applied to the study of sustainable investment decisions and asset management, as investors have become increasingly aware of the importance of managing their investments in a socially-responsible manner. Sustainable investment strategies, such as impact investing, rely on investors making decisions based on an understanding of their own values and those of the companies they are investing in, rather than relying purely on financial performance as the primary criterion. The principles of behavioral finance can be applied to inform sustainable decision-making processes, as they emphasize the importance of understanding investor preferences and motivations and recognizing when irrational decisions may be made. In this way, behavioral finance can help promote the efficacy of sustainable investing and asset management practices.
